US Civil War in 2016?

Levels of Presentation

Death by PowerPoint, in order worst to best

- 1: So bad you think the person can't present and knows nothing about the topic
- 2: Person has extensive knowledge and credentials about the topic but you would only sit through if you had no choice, such as because it is part of a course that is required for a college degree
- 3: Presenter can't present or lacks knowledge in topic
(Success here is that the audience thinks I am bad at presenting, not that I know nothing about the topic.)
- 4: Presentation is good and lecture gives attendee a general knowledge about the topic so they can take part in an 'intelligent conversation' (This is what I am trying for with my presentations due to limitations of time and resources)
- 5: Presentation is perfect and almost choreographed "like a Broadway show"

US Civil War in 2016?

Lecture Experience

Generally lectures to small groups (5 to 10 people typical lecture, depending on venue) about ‘issues of decline for the United States’ since 2005 and other topical subjects in current day.

In short, if I ‘show up on the scene’ in an area or subject, it is usually because something is going on there that is in decline, and not a good sign of how things are going.

US Civil War in 2016?

Why Care?

Civil Wars usually reflect and contribute to the decline and destruction of the state.

While the possibility of the Election of 2016 starting a civil war is remote, this is the most divisive I have ever seen people over an election in my lifetime. Some of the reports of protests and the constant refrain that the winner is 'not my President' does make me wonder if the situation could escalate because people are unable to unwilling to accept the results.

Hopefully, on Jan 20, 2017, (inauguration day of the new President) the idea of the election of 2016 starting a civil war in the United States will be seen as a fear about nothing.

US Civil War in 2016?

Why Care?

Civil Wars usually reflect and contribute to the decline and destruction of the state.

Ex: Ancient Rome. While the Republic/Empire may have eventually fell, civil wars certainly did not help “Power hungry leaders and political backstabbing made civil war an ever-present part of Roman life, and the infighting eventually helped trigger both the fall of the Roman Republic and the fracture and decline of the Empire.” <http://www.history.com/news/history-lists/6-civil-wars-that-transformed-ancient-rome>

US Civil War in 2016?

Why Care?

No nation state ever had a good outcome to a civil war.
Even the winning side of a civil war is usually a wreck.

Ex: Ancient Rome and civil war in the aftermath of the death of Julius Caesar, many of the participants ended up dead within a decade or ruined

US Civil War in 2016?

Why Care?

No nation state ever had a good outcome to a civil war. Even the winning side of a civil war is usually a wreck.

Ex: Accounts of the North from the book, April 1865 by Jay Winik recount how large parts of the South were in ruins (i.e. burned to the ground) while the economy of the North was in a shambles from the cost of the war. There are indications that if the fighting had gone on into another year that the cost would have caused the North to call for a truce based on the ruinous cost of the war.

US Civil War in 2016?

Why Care?

I have been a registered Democrat for almost 20 years now. I am concerned that if people refuse to accept the outcome of the election, that something very bad could happen to the rule of law in this country. This is the worst I have even seen people acting after an election in my lifetime. Most of the time, people on the losing side are somber but respectful of the result, and recognize that under the rule of law, the results must be accepted.

This time we are seeing people on both sides being ruled by their emotions, irrational fear, feelings and 'wanting things their way' because of their feelings.

That is not how things should work in this country.

US Civil War in 2016?

Why Care?

If people do not like the result, then they need to work harder next time to get the candidate or party they want to win, to win. I see signs that people within my party are rapidly devolving down a path that could lead to a civil war within a matter of weeks with either Democrats refusing to accept the results and taking up arms to stop the transition of power, or somehow cheating to overturn the original outcome, in which case Republicans will be justifiably outraged at the election being stolen from them and taking up arms to prevent such cheating.

US Civil War in 2016?

Electoral College

What is it?

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Electoral_College_\(United_States\))

“The United States Electoral College is a mechanism established by Article Two of the United States Constitution in the indirect United States presidential election system to select the President of the United States and Vice President of the United States. Citizens of the United States vote in each state at a general election to choose a slate of "electors" pledged to vote for a party's candidate. ”

US Civil War in 2016?

Electoral College

What is it?

The Electoral College is established by the US Constitution.

The purpose of using an electoral college instead of a majority of the national popular vote was so that low population areas would not get swamped or controlled by high population areas.

The idea was to combine national with federal (federation) elements in the selection of the President.

US Civil War in 2016?

Electoral College

What is it?

The Federalist #39

<http://electoralcollegehistory.com/electoral/federalist39.asp>

“From this aspect of the government it appears to be of a mixed character, presenting at least as any federal as national features.”

This is the same basis for the two houses of congress.

The Senate gives each state an equal number of senators, two.

The House of Representatives have the number of representatives for a state based upon population, with every state having at least one representative.

US Civil War in 2016?

Electoral College

What is it?

The Electoral College electors are based on one for each senator or representative with an additional three electors for the District of Columbia (Washington, D.C.) making a total of 538 electors.

This combines the equal representation of the Senate with the proportional representation of the House of Representatives into one body.

US Civil War in 2016?

Electoral College

Why not just base the election on popular vote?

The reason that the election can NOT be based on just popular vote is the same reason that there are two Houses of Congress. The creation of the two houses of Congress was agreed upon so that low population areas would join the United States. Without such a system, there is no reason for low population areas to be part of the United States, and instead of being one country we probably would be three or more countries. (Both coastal areas as their own country plus the area in between a third country and probably more.)

US Civil War in 2016?

Electoral College (EC)

New York City area vs New England example for EC

As an example of why there needs to be some accounting for equal representation based on geography, compare all of New England with the New York City metropolitan statistical area

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Northeastern_United_States

New York City area population (2010) - 18,897,109

New England states (2015) - 14,727,585

[ME, NH, VT, CT, MA, RI]

US Civil War in 2016?

Electoral College (EC)

New York City area vs New England example for EC

The New York City area has over 4 million more people than the entire six state area of New England!

In our example, without some kind of accounting for equal representation based on geography, New York City could determine what happens for people living hundreds of miles away! (Bangor, ME is 440 miles from New York city or a six hour drive)

US Civil War in 2016?

Electoral College (EC)

New York City area vs New England example for EC

Without an institution like the electoral college, people in low density population areas would have little to no meaningful representation in their government.

Can anyone truthfully say that the interests and concerns of a large metropolitan area like New York City are the same as an area as far away as Bangor, ME?

Under a straight popular vote system, the entire Northeast United States could be ignored in favor of courting the voters of the New York city statistical area!

Election 2016 Results

Trump expected to win 306 electoral college votes

Clinton expected to get 238 electoral college votes

Jill Stein and The Green Party are calling for recounts.

Voter recounts expected to take place in MI, WI, and PA but no recount has ever changed an election with the margins won by Trump.

US Civil War in 2016?

Recounts

Jill Stein and Green Party are raising money for recounts for PA, WI, and MI

It is expected that the recounts will have no change on the election outcomes, but will allow the Green Party to raise substantial amounts of money from Democrat 'hopefuls' trying to change the election results.

I predict this effort will fail, since all three states would need to be changed, something that has never happened before.

US Civil War in 2016?

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts

In order to prevent Trump from getting the 270 electoral votes, recounts in all three states would need to succeed.

WI – 10 electoral votes

MI – 16 electoral votes

PA – 20 electoral votes

Trump got 306, so 37 EC votes would need to be changed

This means recount would need to succeed in all three states to mean anything

PA vote recount problems

In order to have a recount in PA, three registered voters in a district need to request a recount. In PA there are over 9,000 districts, so over 27,000 signed and notarized affidavits would be needed to cover the entire state.

<http://www.jill2016.com/recountpa>

“In addition to the costs of a recount, we also need to find at least three voters in each election district willing to submit an affidavit to their county board of elections requesting a recount.”

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

PA – The margin of win for the Republicans was over 70,000 votes. It is highly unlikely, that even with a full state wide recount (that looks like will only be about 50% of the districts) the vote count would change enough to matter.

This is a waste of time and money.

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

WI denied recount by hand

<http://www.jsonline.com/story/news/politics/elections/2016/11/28/elections-staff-layout-recount-timeline/94539210/>

“the agency declined to require county officials to recount the votes by hand.”

Even with a hand recount, it is unlikely that the outcome would change enough to matter.

Without a hand recount, the result will probably be almost the same as it was on election night, thereby not making a difference to the election outcome.

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

MI is all paper and/or scanned optical

MI has no computer voting machines for anyone to have 'hacked' into.

While the margin of victory for the Republican was a lot less than PA at 11,000 votes, it is still too many votes to change with a recount.

As of Wednesday, November 30, 2016 a recount for MI was filed in time for.

It is not expected that anything will change due to the recount.

Instead, by taking away precious needed votes by Clinton, Stein cost Clinton the state of MI and its 16 electoral votes!

US Civil War in 2016?

MI recount stopped as of Friday, December 09 2016

MI Supreme court agreed with appeals court ruling that the recount should have never been started. The appeals court ruling was an appeal of a district court ruling that the state board of elections should NOT have stopped the recount.

Unless there is a federal issue to appeal the case on from the MI Supreme court, up to the US Supreme Court, this is the end of the recount court cases in MI, and the vote should be able to be certified by the state for the Dec 13, 2016 deadline.

US Civil War in 2016?

WI recount as of Dec 09 2016

The recount is still in process, but the results are not changing that much. One county video release showed Trump GAINED 15 votes on a hand recount. This was possible since with a hand recount, they are allowed to take into account the 'voter intent'. This means that on ballots where the ballot was not filled in per instructions, but instead the candidate's names was circled, or underlined, or written in on the write in space even though it was printed above, they count those votes for the candidate.

US Civil War in 2016?

If Jill Stein was really looking for a Clinton win, then maybe she should have announced support for Clinton BEFORE the election and got her voters to vote for Clinton.

Instead, by taking away precious needed votes by Clinton, Stein help cost Clinton the state of PA and its 20 electoral votes!

While Stein did not ruin the democrat changes of winning her all by herself, if the Democrats had gotten Stein (Green Party) and Darrell Castle (Constitution Party) to vote Democrat, Clinton would have won the state.

US Civil War in 2016?

PA recount as of Friday, Dec 09 2016

PA judge is taking the weekend to decide. At the moment recount is NOT statewide, so even if the recount goes forward, it will not do any good.

The only reasonable good for anyone trying to stop Trump from becoming President, that could come from PA is that the case is still ongoing, and the state can not certify its votes for the Dec 13 2016 deadline.

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

PA recount as of Dec 09 2016

My prediction – The federal district court on Monday will stop the PA recount, and use the same explanation(s) that MI did; i.e. Jill Stein lacks standing because a recount will not benefit her, plus there is no presentable evidence of voter fraud changing the outcome. I expect any attempt to appeal up or get an order to prevent the certification on Dec 13 2016 will not work

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

Russia hacked in to alter the election?

This explanation does not make any sense. No one has shown definitive evidence that is what happened. If anything, there is definitive evidence that most of the email and servers of the Clinton campaign were accessed by someone. Also, after the whole incident with the Hillary Clinton email server, it would be more likely that other nations would WANT a Clinton administration in office, with the hope they would repeat the 'separate email server' thing once Clinton was in office and would NOT tell anyone they had access.

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

Russian (or someone else) hacked in?

IF a Clinton administration took office, and setup their own email server, that was easily broken into, then that entity would be able to watch all of Hillary Clinton's communications and have a decisive advantage in information about the United States and its decision making process, as it was going on.

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

Russian (or someone else) hacked in?

If I was Russia, or running things for someone that hoped to get access to the internal decision making of the next administration, and had the ability to change the election, I would want a Clinton administration, not Trump, for just this reason. i.e. Hope and Pray for Clinton to setup another private email server, then routes everything through it, which I could then easily break into and monitor administration email in near real time!

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

Possible reason people WANT to believe ‘Russia hacked’

One possible reason that people WANT to believe that the election was altered by Russia or another entity, is that this would be an easier fit to their internal belief that Hillary was the ‘real’ winner. Such a belief also allows the person to understand how the polls were so far off of the results. i.e. Hillary ‘really won’ but the election was stolen and that explains how the polls were wrong. Another benefit is that it gives the believer hope that somehow the result they ‘feel’ is right will still happen.

US Civil War in 2016?

Vote recounts problems

Problem with Russia/Someone 'Hacked' theory

Another problem is that one needs to believe that even though Trump had a far smaller ground organization, that somehow Trump was able to pull something off on this large of a scale, in multiple states, without anyone finding out.

It is simply just not credible that the larger Clinton campaign could have been outsmarted by the much smaller Trump campaign staff on something like this.

Clinton had just about every 'insider' working for her, while Trump had none of those people

US Civil War in 2016?

Predictions that Expected Trump to Win

Part of the problem with believing the ‘Clinton should have won and must have had the election stolen’ theory is that there were sources that expected, predicted, and were correct about a Trump win

In order to believe that these sources were right, and because the election was rigged, one would also need to believe that somehow they knew or thought and ‘in’ on the knowledge of the election being rigged

This is just not credible or plausible

US Civil War in 2016?

Predictions that Expected Trump to Win

I, myself, expected a Trump win at 276 Electoral votes.

I did not expect PA or WI to go for Trump. On election night, while talking with a friend on the west coast by text throughout the evening, I said that if Trump got FL, and 2 of the four states 'in the middle states' of OH, IN, MI or WI; then Trump was going to win.

As it turned out, I was too conservative on my estimate, since Trump got FL, plus the 'four in the middle', plus the surprise of PA going for Trump.

US Civil War in 2016?

Predictions that Expected Trump to Win

Clinton must have known there was a problem with PA

On the night before the election, Clinton and Obama made a last campaign stop in PA

IF PA was solid and in the Democrat camp, they would have stopped somewhere else, instead of wasting a last campaign rally on a state that is supposed to be a solid Democrat state

Instead, the fact the Democrats had a last stop in PA shows that they must have known they could lose PA!

Green Party Recount fund raising

Some commentators believe that the Green Party is taking advantage of Clinton supporters hope that the election can still be won on a recount, and misusing this hope to raise funds for the Green Party itself.

There is no other reasonable explanation so far, as to why the Green Party would want to over turn the election results, or even why the Green Party believe that any recount would change the outcome, but they are taking in a lot of money from all of this.

US Civil War in 2016?

How and When could a civil war start?

Even with the recounts, in many state the electors are not bound by the state vote and can change their vote.

Usually this does not happen, since then it would make a mockery of the election process. In an election that was as emotional as this one, such a change, in going against the will of the people of each state, would make it look like the election was stolen from them, and probably lead down the road to a civil war.

US Civil War in 2016?

How and When could a civil war start?

Even with the vote recounts, I expect that December 19, 2016 will be the critical day. If the electors vote as they are supposed to according to the voting in their states, then everything should continue without any problems.

HOWEVER, if for any reason electors change, either due to voting 'how they feel like voting', or being coerced/bribed/threatened or changed due to the results of a recount, then there is a high change that many people will feel the election is being stolen.

At this point, this is when problems could or would start.

US Civil War in 2016?

How and When could a civil war start?

If problems are going to start, December 20, 2016 will be the day, once 'changes' in the electoral college vote become known and people have a chance to react.

As a side note: If the electors do not vote in accordance with the state voting as tallied from November 8; it would not surprise me at all to see on C-SPAN's Washington Journal program, just after 7am, the first elements of a citizens' militia forming and visible outside through the window that is behind the moderator. While this is NOT something I hope to see, if things go wrong, I would not be surprised and could understand why this was happening. (i.e. They are angry and have had 'enough'.)

US Civil War in 2016?

The Rule of Law

To prevent problems, such as a civil war breaking out over an election, is the reason why we have and believe in ‘the rule of law’.

The rules and processes for the election were agreed to in advance, but like other close elections, we discover that things are not as they should be but do not do anything about them until there is a problem.

Prior case in point was the election of 2000 with the Presidential election of Bush and Gore, and the problems in Palm Beach county ballots.

US Civil War in 2016?

Election of 2000 and Palm Beach Ballot problem

<http://www.nytimes.com/2000/11/09/us/2000-elections-palm-beach-ballot-florida-democrats-say-ballot-s-design-hurt-gore.html>

In that election, the voters probably DID make a mistake with the ballot, but TOUGH!

There were all kinds of laws, rules and procedures in place for people to understand the ballot, and STILL people messed it up.

They even printed a copy of the ballot in an issue of the paper prior to the election, for everyone to look at, in addition to prior time periods for people to comment on the ballot design. Of course, no one says or does anything until there is a problem or close result, and then all hl breaks loose as people scream the election is being stolen from their side!

US Civil War in 2016?

Election of 2000 compared to 2016

Here we see similar problems, no one says or does anything until there are close results, and then people start coming up with all kinds of reasons as to why they 'feel' their side won.

My response: NO! There was a process in place, all indications were that it was followed in 2016, as it was in 2000, and this is the lawful result, the Republican party candidate won.

US Civil War in 2016?

Election 2016 results and Democrat platform

IF people really cared about moving forward with the party platform, or doing what is good for the country, then MAYBE instead of trying to tear down an administration that has not even taken office yet, it MIGHT be better to see what can be accomplished by working with the new administration and compromising on legislation, instead of insisting that everything has to be our way because of our ‘feelings’.

Is the party objective to do what is right for the country or is the objective to put specific people only into office for their own personal gain?

Identity Politics

If I had to narrow down everything to one reason why my party lost, this would be it. The party no longer talks about ‘rule of law’ or ‘due process’ and how it applies to everyone; instead the machinery of the party targets the feelings of its constituents and reduced everything to Identity Politics.

While Identity Politics worked in the past, the election of 2016 shows that it no longer works and loses elections.

(If your party loses the election, then you can’t push your party platform or agenda, so it might be a good idea to change how the party is getting votes.)

For Democrats, the Road Back

“They’re reconsidering now not because identity politics balkanizes society, creates state-chosen favored groups, and fosters communal strife; they’re reconsidering because it’s not working.”

Prediction: If the Democrat party does not change course, it will suffer loses in the 2018 midterm elections, and end up almost completely shut out of the legislative process with a Trump/Pence win in 2020!

If you thought the defeat in 2016 was bad for Democrats, you may have seen nothing yet!

Even Bill Clinton did NOT recommend running on an agenda of Identity Politics and wanted to make the economy, technology and globalization the central issues of the Democrat campaign!

“During the campaign, Bill Clinton felt that he was ignored by Hillary's top advisers when he urged them to make the economy the centerpiece of her campaign. He repeatedly urged them to connect with the people who had been left behind by the revolutions in technology and globalization.”

Say what one will about Bill Clinton, but no one can deny that he was an expert at WINNING campaigns, yet here we find out that he was shut out of the process and ignored! (Many problems of which were unfortunately of his own creation, but he would still win.)

And some people are still wondering how the Democrat party and candidate Hillary Clinton could have lost?!?!?! I would ask, How could she have won?

Problems with the Democrat/Clinton Campaign

Many people seemed genuinely surprised when Hillary Clinton and the Democrats lost the election, but I would put it to you, with all of the mistakes, problems, mess ups, etc, how could anyone really have thought the Democrats and Hillary Clinton was going to win?

One thing that does not seem to have occurred to people, is that Trump/Republicans might win in 2020 and take more seats in the 2018 midterm elections.

I did find the internet addresses www.trump2020.com was registered back in 2011 on August 04, 2011!

So someone else has already planned on a Trump 2020 campaign!

Why talk about problems with Clinton campaign verse Trump?

Because Trump won, so for all his faults, flaws or reasons to not vote for Trump, enough people in the right areas voted for him to win

So my focus here will be on what caused Clinton to lose needed votes

Apparently, in the haste to get Hillary away from the 09/11 ceremony area, before she completely collapsed in front of everyone, Hillary ended up leaving one of her shoes behind on the pavement!

Hillary Clinton Health problems

While health problems by themselves may not prevent someone from getting elected, trying to hide the problems and refusing to discuss them does not help.

Hillary and the Democrats ran the risk if she had an incident during a debate that it would have ended the campaign for her, since many voters would assume she was not healthy enough to hold the high stress job of President of the United States

My Prediction – Hillary’s health may be so poor that she passes away prior to the inauguration! That would truly be a ‘Shakespearean end’ to the tragedy of the Hillary Clinton Presidential campaign (i.e. She lost the campaign, then loses all of her political power, and then passes away)

Apparently, many of the Clinton supporters are now in terror of the monster that the DNC/Democrats/Clinton Campaign made Trump out to be

Instead of trying to achieve some legislation from the party platform, they are wasting time and effort on negating the election because of their ‘feelings’

Metrics to watch and measure

What do we want to measure?

How many people are reading/viewing/taking part?

Trending towards peaceful/legal or illegal/violent?

Are people acting within the law?

Are people respecting the rule of law?

Are people following due process?

Are people engaging in free and open discussion, or is the public discussion being stopped/censored in any way?

Are 'safe spaces' expanding and not allowing people to be able to talk about current events?

US Civil War in 2016?

Metrics to watch and measure

Are protests peaceful or violent?

Are protests growing or shrinking?

Are protests getting more peaceful or more violent?

Are people looking to work through the legal process for changes they want by working harder on the next election, or do they appear to be considering ‘shortcuts’ to the legal process (coup, violent protests, subvert the democratic process, etc)

Are discussions about the election based on facts, reason, logic and rational debate; or are people talking about ‘their feelings’?

US Civil War in 2016?

Metrics to watch and measure

Are people looking to compromise and work with the incoming administration, to achieve their political objectives, or are people looking to undermine and then overturn (overthrow?) the incoming administration in order to achieve their political objectives?

Are people becoming more or less concerned about violence due to the election results?

If credible evidence presented that Electoral College process illegally interfered with, would citizens have a legal right to form militias to protect ‘the rule of law’ and President Elect?

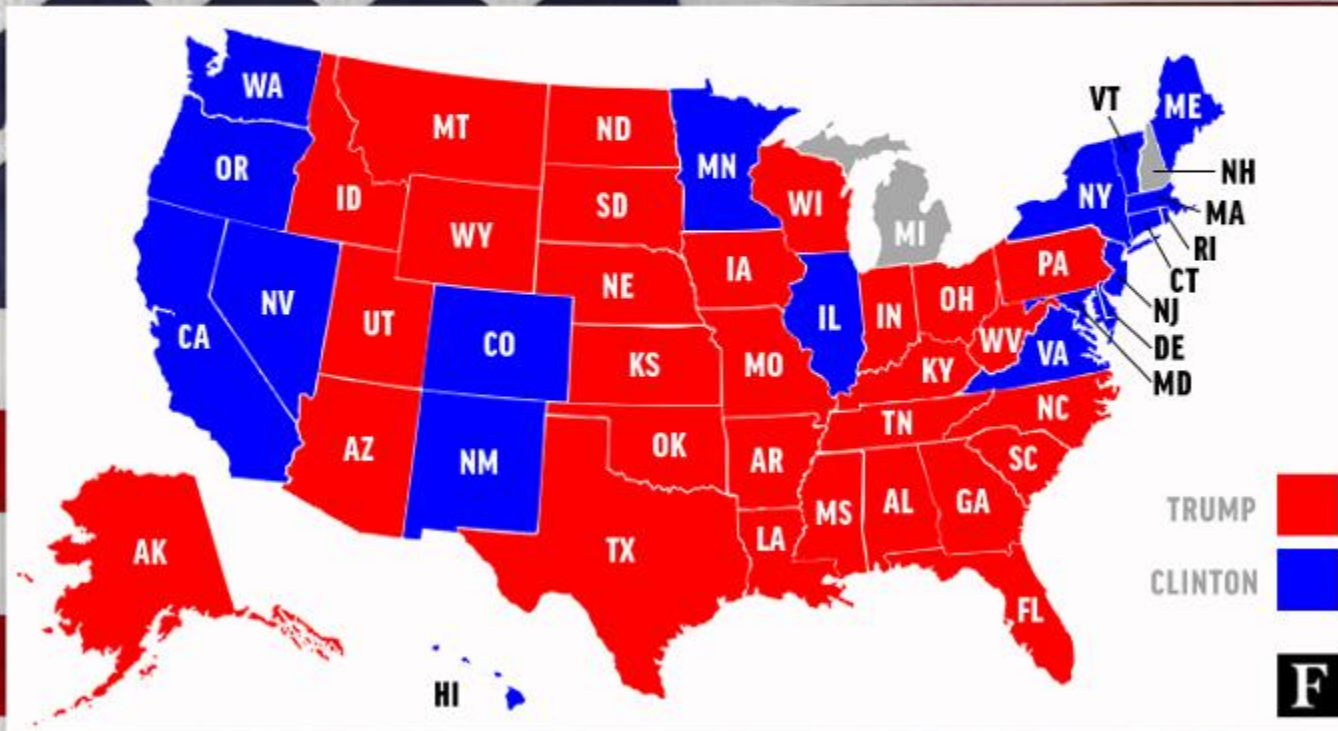

My answer: Depending on how big or outrageous, the undue influence, citizens could have a constitutional right to protect the process and the rule of law. My observation is that many voters will not tolerate any undue influence in preventing the President Elect from taking office.
